PROMPT 4

Consumption of material goods in some developing countries is quickly reaching Western proportions. For instance, some developing countries are being asked to comply with environmental regulations which many developed countries did not have to observe until recently.

- Discuss whether it is fair to require more from developing countries nowadays than it was required from the latter ones in the past.
- Speculate on how these new regulations might consequently affect developing countries.

Remember: You will be assessed on the content, organization, logical development, and complexity of your essay as well as richness and precision of your vocabulary and grammar, spelling and suitability for the intended reader.

Note that the intended reader is a well-educated native speaker.

Suggested length: approximately 300 words.
